ABOUT ACADEMIC & SCHOLARLY TECHNOLOGY SERVICES

Academic & Scholarly Technology Services provides University-wide tools, platforms, training, and digital media support. We work closely with faculty to facilitate the use of technology in teaching, research, and scholarship. Through close partnerships with the Library, museums, and research computing units across campus, we help faculty explore new ways of approaching academic endeavors using online tools, digital materials, and other technology solutions.

WE CAN HELP YOU...

Build your course site

Build your course site and use more advanced features to streamline your grading, assess student progress, promote collaboration, and more. See our workshop calendar at academictech.uchicago.edu/events.

Integrate advanced teaching tools

Explore advanced teaching tools such as blogs, wikis, Google Apps, and video assignments with us and design creative assignments that excite students and help them achieve learning goals. For a list of University-provided tools, see academictech.uchicago.edu/tools.

Migrate your course to Canvas

In the 2016-18 academic years, Chalk will be replaced by Canvas as the new learning management system. Learn more about the transition, the platform, and our workshops at courses.uchicago.edu.

Set up and borrow audio-visual equipment

Use audio-visual equipment in your classrooms. If your classroom is not equipped with built-in AV technology, you can borrow audio-visual equipment for instructional use.

Create new digital media materials

Convert older media into digital formats that provide more flexibility for your courses. We can also partner with you to create and edit new visualizations and graphics for your course.

Flip your Classroom

Use your class time for higher-order thinking and collaboration by pre-recording your lectures that students preview ouside of class sessions. Set up a consultation to get started.

Get software training via lynda.com

Learn how to use statistical, design and office software through lynda.com, a video-based e-learning resource. Access with your CNetID at lynda.uchicago.edu.

Get technical support

The IT Services TECHB@R, located on the first floor of the Joseph Regenstein Library, provides convenient walk-up technology support, equipment lending, conference space, and video conferencing capabilities.

CONTACT US
